OFFICIAL OPENING | 18 JUNE 2010

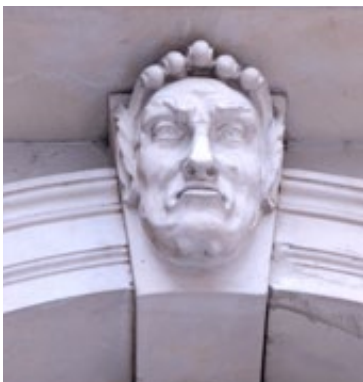

“Every change in the law represents a new opportunity for the enterprising lawyer”

Lord Kerr

Belfast based legal firm Johnsons Solicitors new London offices in Whitehall were officially opened on 18 June 2010 by Lord Kerr. The expansion by the firm, which also has a major Dublin base, is in response to the growing demand by clients with business interests across Britain and Ireland seeking representation in multiple jurisdictions by a single firm. Recognised as one of Ireland’s leading law firms, Johnsons specialises in media law/reputation management; intellectual property; personal injury; dispute resolution and professional negligence led by senior partner, Paul Tweed.

Guests from across Ireland, Britain, Europe and North America representing law, finance, business, politics, entertainment and the media attended the event.

“Johnsons expansion to London is a natural progression for us in servicing the requirements of our Irish and international clients”

Paul Tweed

The Johnsons team in London headed by Paul Tweed with (l-r); Selena Kerins, John McMahon, Ken Chambers, David Craig, Carl Rooney and Kathy Mathews.
